

BUNBURY 2022

*Dying to Know Day is an annual campaign that brings to life conversations and community action around death, dying and bereavement. The campaign aims to support Australians to improve their death literacy and progress end-of-life planning through local and community events. All activities are free and open to anyone who would like to attend. Please note that some activities require an RSVP to secure your spot. If you are unable to attend a booked activity, please notify the host so another person can take your place.

SATURDAY, 6 AUGUST

SUNDAY, 7 AUGUST

10.00 AM DEATH CAFE "DYING FOR A CUPPA", CITY OF BUNBURY FUNCTION ROOM, 4 STEPHEN ST.

Facilitated by Deb Wraight.

Come and enjoy the experience of a Death Cafe. You may find it so interesting that you join our regular monthly Bunbury Death Cafe and benefit from the education, networking and story sharing with members, aimed to improve death literacy in our community.

For this meeting we invite you to bring along an everyday object or photo that reminds you of someone special who has died. Does that object have a tale to tell? Don't want to bring an object - no worries, just bring yourself and your curiosity.

Bookings essential for catering purposes

MONDAY, 8 AUGUST

5.30 PM SUPPORT AFTER SUICIDE SEMINAR

HUDSON ROAD FAMILY CENTRE, 95 HUDSON ROAD, BUNBURY

Hosted by Lisa Laschon, StandBy Coordinator.

Duration: 1.5 hours

Death by suicide can be complex and difficult for us to process. We may want to support others who are bereaved or impacted by suicide but don't know how.

In this seminar, the question, "What Do I Say? What Do I Do?" will go some way to preparing you to offer support by knowing who you can refer to and how to make that first step to support.

Bookings essential for catering purposes

RSVP: standby.southwest@anglicarewa.org.au or phone 0419 351 329
